EYE TRAUMA 2024 ASOT ANNUAL MEETING & SKILLS TRANSFER WET LAB

Dear Corporate Partner,

It is our pleasure to invite you to support The American Society of Ophthalmic Trauma (ASOT) 4th Annual Meeting and Damage Control Wet Lab from Friday, May 17th and Saturday, May 18th, 2024, at the Houston Methodist Institute for Technology, Innovation and Education in Houston, Texas. Please see the opportunities on the next few pages for Exhibitor and Sponsorship support.

Program Overview

ASOT Eye Trauma 2024 is an intensive expert-led program focused on improving outcomes for the injured eye. Attendees will have the opportunity to learn the latest in diagnosis, treatment, and research, gain exposure to devices, and learn surgical skills for damage control after eye trauma.

The program emphasizes a holistic, cross-disciplinary approach to the injured patient, which includes managing injuries that affect multiple sites in the eye (orbit, adnexa, muscles, anterior and posterior segments and innervation); treating eye injuries in the setting of an unstable patient with systemic polytrauma; anesthesia in emergency settings; consent and liability; infection control; and addressing the psychological effects of vision loss after trauma. International eye care providers who cannot travel to the USA will have live-stream access to the program. The course will be recorded for enduring educational content.

Needs Assessment

Eye trauma affects all populations and occurs in any setting. From infants to the elderly, patients can present with penetrating, crush, chemical, or thermal injuries sustained at home, work, in sports and daily activities or in combat. Whether from a fall, accident, or assault, all providers must be prepared to assess, stabilize, and treat or triage the injured eye. This meeting provides front-line practitioners with an innovative and collaborative opportunity to share and integrate knowledge from an international panel of ophthalmic traumatologists drawn from premier teaching institutions and from the military. A low ratio of students to faculty provides lab attendees the benefit on one-on-one teaching and training. Training in the skills needed to manage eye injuries is important to serve patients by improving outcomes and preventing blindness.

Target Audience:

This course is designed for ophthalmologists, ophthalmology trainees, researchers, medical students, and optometrists. The information is relevant to providers across all sub-specialties including retina, cataract, glaucoma, oculoplastics, cornea, pediatrics/strabismus, neuro-ophthalmology and public health. The hands-on wet lab is open to ophthalmologists and ophthalmology residents.

Supporting ASOT Eye Trauma 2024 is a unique prospect to highlight your brand with an engaged U.S. and International audience who will also use your products in the non-emergency setting.

The information, with acknowledgement of your support, will endure in online format after the meeting to reach and educate a world-wide audience. We encourage you to take full advantage of this excellent opportunity to network with your target market.

Educational Objectives:

1. Learn the principles and surgical skills for damage control ophthalmology
2. Understand evidence-based decisions and controversies in managing trauma of the orbit, adnexa, cornea, lens, vitreous, retina, extraocular muscles, and optic nerve
3. Understand the classification of eye injuries and its importance in epidemiology and trauma research
4. Learn the impact of NASA space programs in laser and radiation eye injury prevention; ocular vulnerabilities during space exploration; treatment in zero gravity; and advances in ophthalmic telemedicine
5. Develop a holistic approach to managing the injured patient, including consent, care in patients with systemic polytrauma, and addressing the psychological impact of injury and vision loss
6. Explore current technology for diagnosing, imaging, and treating the injured eye.

Educational Methods:

Didactic lectures, panel discussions, pro-con controversial case debates, industry-led technology displays, hands-on skills transfer lab.
